

I recently decided to sell my Bitterroot Valley Property. I live in Arizona and my plans for retirement had changed. I called Rich Miller. He looked at my property and compared it to others on the market. We came up with an asking price together and forty-three days later I was taking a check to the bank. Rich answered all my questions and saw me through the stressful experience of selling. He called me every few days and kept me informed of the progress of the escrow which entailed septic permits and other details I had not even considered.

If I ever decide to buy in Montana again, I'll call Rich Miller
